Shipment Delays Due to Adverse Weather Conditions

Due to the continued spread of adverse weather conditions across the UK and Europe we are experiencing significant transit delays due to airport closures and reduced flight availability.

This has resulted in shipments incurring a minimum of 24 - 48 hour delivery delay.

The forecast for the coming days is set to continue with heavy snow and ice.

This situation is being closely monitored by Almac however if you have concerns over particular shipments please contact your Distribution Coordinator who will be able to provide a full update.

We continue to investigate the possibility of contingency plans where practical to truck EU destined shipments from Almac to the final destination.

We will continue to work on contingency plans to ensure we minimise any disruption over the coming weeks.

Please note that Almac is still fully operational for business and will remain open during its scheduled hours – we will provide further notification if the situation changes.

If you have any further enquiries please contact Sharon Courtney, Distribution Manager sharon.courtney@almacgroup.com who will deal with queries as promptly as possible!
